Excellence in First Nations, Inuit and Métis Cancer Research

We are seeking nominees for the inaugural Excellence in First Nations, Inuit and Métis Cancer Research. Please nominate an individual who has excelled in advancing efforts in First Nations, Inuit and Métis Cancer Research. This award will be presented at the Canadian Cancer Research Conference in Calgary (Nov. 2-4, 2025). Please fill out the below information and submit your nomination to kmb@partnershipagainstcancer.ca by August 17, 2025.

This award will be awarded to an individual whose leadership and contributions have significantly advanced First Nations, Inuit, or Métis cancer research through one or more of the following:

- applied First Nations, Inuit, or Métis methodologies and knowledge systems to generate new insights into cancer experiences and outcomes
- engaged Knowledge Holders, Elders, or Traditional Healers in meaningful and substantive roles
- built capacity for First Nations, Inuit, or Métis-led research through mentorship, collaboration, and community involvement
- supported First Nations, Inuit, or Métis data sovereignty and governance through ethical and culturally appropriate research practices
- contributed to wellness and equity for First Nations, Inuit, or Métis peoples through research that informs cancer policy, practice, or systems change
